Chapter 1 by Sapphire Rivers

I think about my youth. How adventurous, daring, exiting it was. I think for a minute then take out a blank book and start writing my life. Which is much longer than your mortal lives. What my life was like when I was Adrianna Grace.

There was a wild young woman who had just hit her twenties and cared little about anything. She didn't even know she was different. She was a warlock, daughter of a human and a greater demon. One of the nine princes of hell. Her demon's mark luckily wasn't too visible. Only pointed ears like in a human elf fantasy.

Her mother's husband died a week before her birth. She never knew him. Her mother, she knew so well she could pretend to be her and no one would notice. Her mother loved her more than anything even if the child was a warlock. The mother had realized what had happened when she saw the ears and carefully hid her child's mark.

Slowly the child became reckless and an adult. The mother knew she must tell her child. When the woman reached twenty one the mother told her what she was. The woman became careful and searched for someone to help her

Eventually she learned of another See more of Story Wars e. She quickly tracked him down.

The woman went to his apartment. She knew he was a warlock. His eyes looked at her. He was oddly dressed, but it didn't matter. She was looking quickly.

"Hello Magnus Bane, I am Adrianna Grace, a warlock. Could you help me to learn to use magic and track down my father, Asmodeus. I believe he is your father too." Adrianna said, tucking back her hair revealing her Demon's mark

"And why should I help you?" Magnus inquired

"Magnus" Adrianna heard a female voice say "I think she's worth it" A woman stepped out she had no demon's mark that Adrianna could see and she had a slight english accent. "Hello, I am Theresa Gray. I am part shadow hunter, part demon. A special type of warlock."

"Ugggggg" Adrianna groaned. Training to use her powers were tiring. It drained her energy, sucking it away, soon enough she managed to heal the simple mundane. The mundane threw a few bills at her and went out of Magnus's apartment.

"You have improved greatly, soon enough you'll be like Magnus." she heard Tessa say. Tessa had been the kindest so far. Magnus had been, well Magnus. But Tessa had been spending most of her time with Zachariah.

"Well, I don't think your talent is healing, but thats what you get the most business from, other than summoning demons." Magnus said. He looked down at a crucifix which he often carried, Adrianna had never mustered up the courage to ask him what it was. It seemed too personal anyway.

"So, I think it's time that you meet ..."

Suddenly the apartment started shaking as a huge BOOM sounded.
